Editor's Column

Defenders of the unique residential character of Carmel constantly find themselves in conflict with development of the city which is the direct result of endeavors to make the town "different."

The throngs of visitors and the proliferation of residential areas on the outskirts of the city can be traced directly to a desire to enjoy what Carmel has to offer . . . an atmosphere unlike other communities.

But Carmel must maintain its atmosphere. The street and public works department, in no small measure, is responsible for this maintenance. Streets must be kept clean and in repair; city trees and landscaping must be cared for. These requirements alone necessitate a great deal of equipment, some of it heavy machinery.

At present, the street and public works department keeps the tools for its work in five locations. This dispersal is inefficient. In addition, much of the equipment is valuable and should be stored under cover. The sheds for this purpose, crowded behind the police station, are inadequate, so are the other facilities similarly used. Above all, they are ugly . . . not at all in keeping with the vaunted beauty of the city.

Last week, the council's lands and improvements committee, in a report, proposed the southerly portion of Forest Hill Park for a corporation yard. But this land, in a canyon bordering Camino Del Monte south of Junipero, is in the residential district.

For years homeowners in this area overlooked an unsightly fill operation in the canyon. Finally, the filling was completed and a recreation area for senior citizens developed on the site dedicated for park use.

That this park land should ever become a corporation yard is justly opposed by those whose houses overlook the canyon.

Once again the residential character of the community is in conflict with the development of the town.

So, where is the corporation yard to go? No one wants it in the residence zone. We apparently can't afford to have it in the business zone. No nearby land outside the city is available or suitable. Shall members of the street and public works department, "those heroes

Saturday is the first day of Spring. Hillsides and meadows along the valley and down the coast are green with lush grass. Oaks are tasseled and pines candled with new growth. The blue of wild lilac vies with the yellow of genista and blossoms on fruit trees are fragrant in the breeze. Johnny-jump-ups, shooting stars, oxalis, buttercups, wild iris, poppies and lupin add more bright colors to the palette of Spring.

Robins chirp and bluejays scold in young willow leaves along the river. Gardens are rejuvenated and the beach is washed clean by Winter's waves. Our world is freshened and aglow. When the sun comes out we are apt to relax into revery even as the young boy pictured above.

But Spring also brings the desire to refresh ourselves, our homes, our wardrobes and our thoughts. Carmel is a most glorious town in which to realize any of these desires.

However, there is little time before other harbingers of Spring will be in our midst. College students on vacation will be here in a few days. It is just four weeks until Easter when other visitors will arrive to share the beauty of the world around us and maybe, too, sing with us a joyous alleluia for a renewed world.

Residents Oppose Using Park For Corporation Yard

Considerable opposition developed this week to the proposed location of a municipal corporation yard on the southerly part of Forest Hill Park.

Residents and property owners who live on the edge of the canyon park, on the floor of which a recreation area for senior citizens is situated, telephoned the Pine Cone to express their opposition to the corporation yard proposal. So did the president of the Seniors Club which enjoys the park's recreation facilities.

Yesterday afternoon members of the planning commission displayed dismay that the south block of the park was proposed as a corporation yard.

A story in last week's Pine Cone told about a report accepted, but not fully approved, by the city council on March 10. Prepared by the council's lands and improvements committee composed of Councilmen Stephen Grant and James Buffington Jr., the report proposed that the present recreational facilities on the southerly half of Forest Hill Park (including shuffleboard courts, putting green etc.) be moved to unused portions of the Forest Theater property above Mountain View Avenue in the Eighty Acres area.

The report further recommended that the city council authorize Burde, Shaw & Associates to complete a site development plan for a corporation yard on the southerly portion of Forest Hill park; also that, upon completion of the plan, new corporation yard facilities be provided on the part of Forest Hill Park mentioned above.

Dudley Nix, whose home overlooks the park area proposed for

The Rhyming Philosopher

By Harry W. Fletcher

No. 99

The way some folks economize
Is strange and sometimes funny.
They think maybe they're won'drous wise
In what pertains to money.

They'll drive for miles to save a dime,
Or haggle for a penny,
Regardless how they waste their time
And brains, if they have any.

But when they're putting on the dog
To make a rich impression,
They absolutely go whole hog
And disregard discretion.

My neighbors sport a motor yacht,
Three cars, a house and mortgage.
There's not a store in town but what
Has bills for them in storage.

Somehow I love my paintless shack;
I never have outgrown it.
There may be lots of things I lack,
But what I've got, I own it.

Tomorrow at 8:15 o'clock 65 girls and 15 boys will act as models for the Spring Fashion Show at the Carmel Youth Center. Above, Linda Zanides in slacks and overblouse with bright red polka dots asks Maurice Grimshaw, member of the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department, about the helmet which Bill Hill, one of the models will wear in the show. In the plaid suit and cap is Gayle Hagenin who seems to be contemplating some use of the fireman's axe she is holding.

Pam Baldwin, Youth Center president, is overall director of the show to raise operating funds by donations of $1.00, for the teenage recreation center. Refreshments will be available at the snack bar during the evening. There will be organ music by Robert Forbes during the program, also entertainment by Pat Cornet and Joe Troxell, folk singers. Following the fashion show, the Imperials will play for dancing. Clothing worn by the models will be from the Gladys McCloud Shop and Boys' Town.

Folksingers Impressive At Sunset Last Weekend

BY TED PARROTT

Sunset School auditorium was the scene of a concert given last Saturday night by folk singers Marc Ellington and Dewie Dutton. Marc is not a native of the area, but is attending MPC for a time. While in our midst he is very active in folk music. He has made several appearances and has cut some records locally, and I understand he has a movie commitment coming up.

Miss Dutton has spent some time in Mexico, which country had a very pleasurable influence on her music.

Marc and Dewie opened with a fine driving duet. They looked well together and sang well together, opening their show with a real bang. For the first part of the concert Dewie Dutton regaled the audience with her truly beautiful voice and able guitar. Her special mariachi stylings made this different art form seem easy. Probably the most impressive part of the performance was the clarity of her enunciation and excellent voice control. I predict we are going to hear a lot about this fine young artist as time goes on.

The appearance of Marc Ellington for the second half of the show was highlighted by the fine backing he received from J. J. Jones on bass and a young Carmelite, Keith Nelson, on guitar and banjo. Keith deserves special mention for the rapidity with which he is becoming a fine instrumentalist.

I must admit I was not too impressed with all of Marc's renditions but some numbers were really good and he has fine stage presence. Good, too, was his speech delivery, but he needs to control his foot tapping and clean up his singing enunciation. Nonetheless, with disciplining, he does have the potential.

Marc's unique left-handed guitar playing may well become a trade mark for him.

All-in-all the group gave a good evening's entertainment well worth the time and money spent.

If all goes according to schedule, the young couple will be married at Christmas, when Michael is due back in the United States.

Nicki, a graduate student at Stanford, is home for Spring vacation with her family. Her sister, Sherri, will be home this weekend from the University of California at Santa Barbara for a quick visit only since her vacation doesn't arrive until Easter.

After picking up their auto in Switzerland, they will join colleagues from the University of Massachusetts, for visits to Prague, Budapest, Belgrade and Athens, and will spend the remainder of the summer on the Isle of Lesbos, where the Harlan Watkinses will arrange the rental of a house for them. While there, Mr. Mayer plans to concentrate on his writing.

The Mayers later will return to Goldern, Switzerland, where they lived previously and where their children went to school. They will be back in the United States after Christmas and Mr. Mayer will resume teaching at the University of Massachusetts. His schedule there allows him to teach one calendar year and use the next for his own writing.

Dicken Mayer, now a student at Earlham College in Indiana, plans to take his third year of study in Europe and will join his parents in Switzerland for Christmas.

Other Two Thirds Here

That Bob (F. Robert) Smith is one of triplets has long been a matter of gentle disbelief among his friends, but now they know it's so. On Sunday the other members of the trio drove over from the Central Valley for a reunion with Bob and his family and turned out to be just as ebullient and amiable as he. Brother Roy, a Madera rancher, is a taller, thinner version of Bob, while his sister, Mrs. Kenneth Webb of Visalia, looks to be only vaguely related in appearance.

Another visitor at the Smiths' on Sunday was Jud Boynton of Berkeley, whom Bob and Lili met in Puerto Vallarta, Mr. Boynton was here to look over property he has purchased at Big Sur.

BURRO-PACK TRIP REUNION

A reunion of members of a burro-pack trip into the Santa Lucia Mountains last year will take place early next month in Salinas. The trip, an annual one taken by qualified Girl Scouts, extended over a period of two weeks during which time the participants camped and hiked within the Los Padres National Forest and Ventana Wild Area. Girls taking part were from Carmel, Monterey, Santa Cruz, Watsonville, Aptos, Soledad and Salinas. A motion picture of the trip, taken by their guide, Anthony C. Zufich, will be shown at the reunion.

This summer will mark the fifth year of these back-pack, burro trips for Girl Scouts. The trips have proved so popular and successful that each year the number of teenagers participating increases. Each season new areas of the national forest are visited. During the past four years, Girl Scouts, their counselors, guide and director have come to know well such places as Pat Springs, Redwood, Barlow Flats, Sykes, South Fork, Willow Springs, Pine Ridge, Hiding, Round Rock and the broad, beautiful, much visited, Pine Valley. The first trip of the fifth season begins June 28.

HIKE AT BIG CREEK

Thirty members of the Sierra Club's Ventana Chapter gathered at Big Creek about 50 miles south of Monterey on Highway One last Sunday for an all-day hike to two unusual points of interest. Permission was given by the owners of the vast Big Creek Ranch, Inc. for qualified members of the club to hike through their privately-owned property. Members had previously indicated their desire to take either the "short" or the "long" hike. The "short" hike, of about six miles, was led by Richard Waite of Salinas. The group moved along Big Creek and enjoyed the unique experience of seeing the hot springs and waterfalls in that area. The "long" hike of 16 miles was led by Rudd Crawford of Pebble Beach. The 15 individuals that comprised this group passed along Devil's Creek and then up the rugged, forested slopes of the Santa Lucias and on to the two spectacular waterfalls within Devil's Canyon. Everywhere there was a profusion of spring wildflowers—yellow violets, purple lupine, Douglas iris, red sage, peonies and snowdrops. The madrones and oaks were in splendid blossom. The high meadows and bald ridges were lush with early season grass. The sky was partially cloudy and a few rain showers added to the coolness of the day. As the hikers returned from their adventure, they were of one accord in saying "It was a most delightful and invigorating day."

KENNOLYN TRIPS

Kennolyn, a privately-owned summer camp situated near Soquel has scheduled a series of four back-pack burro trips into the Los Padres National Forest, the first beginning July 5. Kennolyn, a long established camp for boys and girls in the Santa Cruz area began their trips in the Sur Coast mountains in 1961.

R.L.S. CARNIVAL BAZAAR

County Supervisor Tom Hudson will raise his voice as auctioneer for a new feature of the annual Carnival Bazaar at Robert Louis Stevenson School on March 27 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. The auction itself begins at 2 p.m.

In preparation for the bazaar, under the direction of chairman Mrs. M. R. Dick, mothers have been sewing, baking, planting, gathering and refurbishing donations, as well as making beautiful decorations for Easter.

According to Mrs. Robert Howze, president of the Sponsors group, the various attractions will be under the direction of Mrs. John Clancy, Boutique; Mrs. William Clark, Petite Bon Bon; Mrs. David Taylor, Pantry Shelf; Mrs. Ralph Jensen, Bakery Booth; Mrs. Church Chappell, Straw Corner; Mrs. Harry Lusignan, Raffle Booth.

A Carnival Gayway, the students' participation, will offer food and drink, games and pony rides. To further tempt parents, there will be a book and record counter, plant and garden site, jewelry box, grab bag, and a white elephant booth.

Audubon Film On Orinoco Delta To Be Shown Tuesday

On Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Pacific Grove Junior High School auditorium, Robert C. Hermes will personally present the "Delta of the Orinoco." This is the last in the current Audubon Wildlife Films which is co-sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society and the Carmel Unified School District.

The Orinoco Delta in Venezuela is a vast area of swamps and jungles. It is one of the few remaining untouched natural regions of the world. Mr. Hermes, renowned photographer and naturalist, spent three months in this rugged and beautiful country recording on color film its wildlife and plant life.

One full month of this time was spent 40 miles from the nearest habitation photographing nesting hoatzins, the great aruco and lovely morpho butterflies. Magnificent close-ups of the oropendolas building their nests and chasing cowbirds away as they attempt to lay eggs in an oriole nest are shown in the film.

In addition, magnificent jungle birds in courtship, a visit with the ingenious mud dauber wasp, water chestnuts in flower, exotic orchids and beautiful tropical hummingbirds are all pictured in the rich setting of the Venezuelan jungle.

Also in the film, the strange four-eyed anableps fish which has two "underwater" eyes and two more for looking around above the surface is pictured about the muddy banks of the stream where it feeds.

Letter To Editor

Hotel Cominos
Salinas
March 14, 1965

Editor
Carmel Pine Cone

This is a letter to support the status quo of Carmel.

According to reports in your newspaper there is a controversy going on regarding the preservation of the status quo of Carmel or "greater expansion" and development, whatever that covers, or means.

A few years ago, when I saw Carmel the first time, it impressed me as a unique and charming place, as it does most tourists who come there. This is the reason visitors come back again and again—to enjoy a leisurely, idyllic place away from the blatancy, the neurasthenic rat race of metropolitan congestion and consequent mushroom "expansion" and "development."

The idea of Carmel's founders was to have a home safely away from the "thundering herd" and its frenetic pace—a refuge from the asphalt and neon light jungle; to maintain a climate for cultural living and pursuits for families that could afford it—a place for artists, writers and craftsmen; to have one of the few places distinguished from the machine and automation type of human endeavor.

Such communities as Carmel, Monterey, Taos and Williamsburg have a right to protect themselves from the encroaching engulfment by the "spoilers."

All over the country from coast to coast there is a sameness of aspect so that a traveler cannot distinguish one city from any other. What concerns the historian, humanist and conservationist is to save a few places of charm and beauty for future generations, be they the redwoods, national parks or picturesque communities.

By all means the original character of Carmel must be preserved and prevented from becoming a "Coney Island." If improvement means better pedestrian sidewalks to the beach, appropriate lightpost lanterns for night lighting and parking spaces beyond the village limits, or other projects in keeping with the original concept of design, I am all for that.

It does not make much sense to harken to the siren song of "greater growth and development," which means—take the existing reputation and built-in values of the village and parlay that into mass promotion for profit on the altar of Mammon. Usually such promotion changes the character of communities to the level of the general monotony of thousands of other places which are billbard, asphalt and neon mediocrities.

Why change Carmel, and for whom? It is to be hoped that Carmelites have enough courage to halt any infringement on their way of life.

There may be a time and place for progress—in other places—but with many other sentimentalists, I am for the status quo of Carmel.

Frank H. Maas

Editor,
The Carmel Pine Cone,

We want you to know how much we appreciate your cooperation during the recent MPC Bond Campaign.

We were particularly grateful for the excellent placement of our ads and for your enthusiastic editorial support.

The committee feels that the large and favorable vote in your area was due in great part to your effort and to your effectiveness as a communications medium.

Yours very sincerely,
Citizen's Committee for MPC

Brass Lantern Will Reopen Saturday In San Juan Bautista

The Brass Lantern Restaurant in San Juan Bautista will re-open Saturday in more spacious and beautiful quarters.

The historic sandstone building that has stood for 120 years on Third Street just a block from the Old Mission has been renovated, painted and re-decorated. All this has been done in a way to preserve the dignity of the past, also enhance the beauty of the sweeping arches in the dining room, the grandeur of the stairs, the opulence of an era long gone.

The new kitchen, however, is of the space age — a vast room equipped with stainless steel as modern as an astronaut's capsule. The space upstairs that once housed 200 Chinese laborers has been converted into a banquet room, a game room with club facilities for the Vaquero Club and a Spanish terrace with a fine view of the surrounding area.

Guests may descend to the wine cellar to select the vintage of their choice. Menus will feature lobsters flown in alive from Maine, steaks, flaming game hens and prime ribs of beef served from a cart at the table.

Men's Glee Club From Stanford To Give Concert Here

Classical and popular songs will be offered by the Stanford University Men's Glee Club in Carmel on March 22 at 8:30 p.m. in Sunset auditorium. The 50-voice troupe is on its first west coast tour.

The club's program parallels the interestingly divergent attitudes of its members: from the scholarly and traditional choral works to the lively and robust popular pieces especially arranged for the group by Director Robert MacKinnon.

The 20-piece Stanford Red Vest Band will accompany the singers in selections from Broadway musicals "Oliver," and "Hello, Dolly" and other top favorites.

Opening its program with traditional selections for men's choral groups, the glee club will then present J. S. Bach's "Now Let Every Tongue Adore Thee" and Beethoven's "Hallelujah" from "Mount of Olives."

The glee club's visit to Carmel is being sponsored by the Stanford Alumni Association of Carmel.

Tickets for the concert are available at Central Box Office in Carmel.

After China, Carmel Is Paradise, Says Mrs. Lee

BY MICHAEL T. MCGAUGHEY

For 12, 14 and even 16 hours a day, seven days a week one may, if one is quick of eye, see Mrs. Pao-Chen (Gwen) Lee scurrying about her Carmel restaurant. Affectionately called "Mama" by many of her regular customers and friends, this busy woman, who was born in China and fled "from Hell to Heaven," as she terms it, has made a remarkable adjustment to a new life in this country.

Each morning at 7:10 her husband P.C., to whom, even after 34 years of marriage, she refers as her boyfriend, drops her off at the restaurant, leaves for five minutes, then returns with a bag of freshly made doughnuts from a nearby bakery. By this time Mama has brewed her first pot of strong black coffee and has started the grill to warming.

Dr. Lee hurries through his breakfast, during which time he manages to spend a minute or two with those early breakfasters who are present. Promptly at 7:30 Dr. Lee's secretary arrives and climbs into his car. Then the two of them drive off to the Defense Language Institute, where Dr. Lee is chairman of the Mandarin Chinese Department.

Thus begins a typical day in the life of Mama and the man around whom her life revolves.

Mama also owns a rest home in Monterey, where she diligently worked for two years, after having worked for five years prior to that at the rest home which she had in Carmel. She left the management of her rest home in the hands of a lessee and obediently followed her doctor's orders by resting in and caring for her own comfortable, immaculate, solid, two-storied home at Thirteenth and Carmelo Streets. (This originally was the home of Grace MacGowan Cooke, a writer who convinced Sinclair Lewis to come to Carmel in 1909, where for six months he stayed and worked in a $15-a-month cottage near her home.)

After approximately two weeks of inactivity Mama's overwhelming energy caused her to seek out another, less strenuous, business in which she could deal with her much-loved public. So she became a restaurant owner.

She reluctantly says of herself that she attended Yenching University in China and Columbia University, New York, where she studied music under Dr. Burrows. Little time has she now to sit and play the piano.

Mama was born in Peiping. She loved Peiping. Her family's house was large, with its many wings, inner courtyards, gardens, and its surrounding wall designed not to keep out the world, but to keep her family's happiness secure. Her beloved grandfather's quarters were in the wing nearest the main gate, which, when closed and locked at sunset, signaled the wish of her grandfather, as eldest male and household head, that the entire family retire. Her older brother's quarters were in the wing directly behind their grandfather's, while her two elder sisters were quartered in the wing behind his. Mama, as the "littlest dodo," had her private domain in the wing farthest back from her grandfather's.

This grandfather had his coffin constructed 20 years before his death."

"Grandfather said that his pine box was the coolest place in all of Peiping on a hot day. When I was a very small dodo I used to sneak in and peep at grandfather while he took his nap in his cool coffin," Mama recalls.

In 1938, one year after World War II's beginning, living in Japanese-occupied Peiping and witnessing the brutality imposed upon her townspeople, particularly young students, was becoming intolerable to Mama.

Her husband's field is actually music education. He had been abroad for two years of study at Oberlin and was in the middle of the sea on his return to China when he heard the news of the war. When he reached Peiping and learned that the Japanese Government had appointed him to lead a chorus under their regime, he fled to Chungking, where he could offer his services to the Ministry of Education, which had been moved to Chungking from Peiping.

Mama and the Lees' daughter, three-year-old Iris, were left in Peiping. With the aid and urging of very close missionary friends it took Mama only hours to pack or sell all of their belongings.

"Saddest of all, the thing that made Iris and me cry, was leaving behind the dog. Since that time I have never owned another, although my son Jimmy, as a youngster, always wanted one."

From Peiping Mama and Iris went to Tungchow to bid farewell to Mama's parents. They were

If you haven't figured out your income tax yet, do it. You may owe more than you think. But don't blame yourself. This year is different—because of adjustments in the withholding rates. And if it turns out that you do owe more than you expected (most people will), just get a personal loan from any Wells Fargo Bank. It's easy to arrange, easy to repay. And a great way to take the worry out of any other tax problems that crop up in April. Come on in. We'll be glad to help.

Tonight CUSD Brings 'Most Stimulating' Principal To Sunset

The third lecture in Adventures in Education series being presented by the Carmel Unified School District will be tonight at 8 p.m. in Sunset School.

Dr. B. Frank Brown, principal of Melbourne High School, Melbourne, Florida, will tell about his non-graded high school program. This school, because of feature articles in magazines with national circulation including, Time, Newsweek, Fortune and the Saturday Evening Post, is one of the most publicized schools in this country. The school has no dramatic new buildings, a rather average budget and a typical staff. However, Dr. Brown and his staff have made remarkable changes that are startling his national colleagues.

Melbourne High School lies in the shadows of the huge gantry cranes at Cape Kennedy, and many suspect the advanced thinking of the space age environment has contributed heavily to some of the innovations which have been made.

Fortune magazine described this school as "perhaps the most stimulating high school in America."

able to stay for only half a day.

"I became depressed because I knew I could not see my parents in this world again if I went to Chungking, but my mother urged me to be with the man I married no matter what might happen."

The train station at Tungchow was guarded by Japanese soldiers, who loomed everywhere.

When Mama and Iris boarded the train they had to be searched. Iris, "the little dodo," was complaining about being too warm and her coat being too heavy. She was unaware that Mama had sewn all of the money she could scrape together into the lining of her coat. Mama was searched and the lining of her coat was ripped out. The soldier who searched her kept smiling at and patting moon-faced Iris on the head. Perspiration dripped from Mama's fingertips. Iris complained again and started to remove her coat. The soldier moved towards her, smiled and told her to keep it on because the air was chilly. Mama's relief nearly caused her to burst into tears, which would have given them away.

"This fearful trip to Chungking made me feel that nothing but a great emptiness confronted me, but to Iris I presented a brave and smiling front.

"With the Lord's guidance we finally joined our Dad peacefully."

The first of the seven years that Mama, Iris, and Dr. Lee were to spend in Chungking provided them with an adequate living standard. Then the bombing began and with it the rationing of food. The government provided them with salad oil, preserved vegetables, and rice, "half of which was sand and small stones." There was no meat, milk, or eggs sometimes for months.

But light and happiness were added to the Lee family in the form of their son Jimmy, who was nicknamed "Bomb."

Dr. Lee was appointed dean of the Chungking Music Conservatory. The Minister of Education promised to send him abroad for study after he graduated the first class under the five-year curriculum plan he laboriously worked out for the conservatory—and he did. In 1944 Dr. Lee came to America. Mama and the children joined him later, although it took Mama exactly a year to obtain a passport.

Dr. Lee took his Ed.D. at Columbia. Mama was able to study with him.

In 1947 they both had an offer from the Far Eastern Languages Institute and so moved to New Haven and taught Chinese for seven years at Yale.

In 1953 Dr. Lee came to Monterey at the offer of the Defense Language Institute. Iris was married and Mama and Jimmy later joined Doctor Lee here.

"From Chungking we came to the United States as if from Hell to Heaven. From New Haven to Monterey we came as if from Red-Leafed Beauty to Paradise. I think that we're going to retire here or perhaps in Taiwan," Mrs. Lee concluded.

Occidental College Wind Ensemble To Play Here March 26

The Occidental College Wind Ensemble, conducted by Felix McKernan, will present a concert at Sunset School auditorium on March 26 at 8 p.m. sponsored by the Carmel High School Padre Band.

Local members of the ensemble will be Ruth Ann Botten, Carmel Valley, and Dwight Edman, Monterey.

A wide variety of music will be performed including symphonic works of several leading 20th century composers who have written music for the schools of America such as Norman Dello Joio. His first work for band completed in April, 1963, "Variants on a Medieval Tune," will be featured on the program. Leonard Bernstein's "Danzon," from his ballet suite "Fancy Free" with its strong Latin beat will also be played. Works by Peter Mennin and Leroy Anderson will also be included in the music of American composers.

Highlighting the program will be a choir of 16 clarinets in a special arrangement of the second movement of Mozart's Quintet in G Minor.

Barbara Seidman, harpist, will play "In The Night," by Salzedo. Gary Kriege, and Clayton Crawford will be featured in Leroy Anderson's "A Trumpeter's Lullaby."

Children's Books

By Dorothy T. Colvin, Children's Librarian

We subscribe very heartily to the theory that "every book is a new book until you have read it." Still it is exciting to dig treasures from among the new publications for the young people's collection of Harrison Memorial Library.

Among the new picture books (Grade 1 - 3), TICO AND THE GOLDEN WINGS by Leo Lionni is an allegory more meaningful than his SWIMMY, but equally flawless in design with its jewel colors. Incidently we have SWIMMY in both French and Spanish editions now. RIDE THE COLD WIND by Anico Surany is the story of a Peruvian Indian shepherd boy who wishes to become a fisherman, perhaps even to catch the elusive Rayo de Oro. Told simply, the strong illustrations by Leonard Everett Fisher evoke the feeling of the coldness of wind and water. CURL UP SMALL by Sandol Warburg is a book of gentle rhythms for the very young with exquisite illustrations that complete a mood of contentment. Rebecca Caudill's A POCKETFUL OF CRICKET is a little pastoral with a simple plot that molds the verse-like prose into a longer picture-story than the others mentioned. Adults reading this story aloud will appreciate the perfect blend of text and picture.

Other lands and other times are always fascinating. Natalie Carlson's THE LETTER ON THE TREE is a quiet, yet warm and thoughtful story of a ten-year-old Canadian boy who is the only member of his family who speaks both French and English. The description of life on a remote Quebec farm, along with family and cultural understanding, is well done (Grade 4-6). FAR OUT THE LONG CANAL by Meindert DeJong depicts winter in a little North Sea coast village. The naturalness of the characters and the tender, humorous understanding of the intensity of a little boy's yearnings give the book depth and reality (Grade 5 - 6). Margot Benary-Isbert in UNDER A CHANGING MOON, as always, brings an outstanding book (Grade 7 and up). For 17-year-old Paula, this year "under a changing moon" brings her first love affair, her adjustment to a lively family life after two years in a convent school and her sober decision about her future. This is a thoughtful novel filled with quiet formality of an older era, Germany in 1865. STRANGER ON A BIG HICKORY by Stephen Meader gives us this author's best storytelling techniques in this book of outdoor life and conservation. Young Skip Rollins' interest in photography and small wild animals leads to evidences of illegal trapping and a mysterious hermit. (Grade 6-8).

A variety of juvenile publications is to be found in the nonfiction section. To select a few new titles: SPANISH-AMERICAN POETRY: A BILINGUAL SELECTION edited by Seymour Resnick. Forty selections allow the reader to enjoy the beauty of the poems without the problem of translating. Tom Glazer's FOLK SONGS FOR THE FAMILY, arranged for piano with chord symbols for guitar and banjo will be welcomed by the hootenany crowd (All grades). Lee Cooper's FUN WITH ITALIAN is learning by recognition, first by sight and then by sound in short picture stories, games and puzzles (Grade 3 - 6). CAESAR, by Irwin Isenberg, produced by American Heritage, is an historical biography of the greatest general and statesman of the ancient world.

Any child who is not a registered borrower, may stop in at the library for a Happiness Card! (According to Peanuts, happiness is having your own library card.)

Editor's note: As a service for Carmel's young readers, Mrs. Colvin, once a month, will tell about new books in her department. The other three weeks of each month, Mrs. Ruth Galvin Thornburg, head librarian, will write this column.

Full-Staged Opera To Be Given At 28th Carmel Bach Festival

The 1965 Carmel Bach Festival—July 16 through July 25—will celebrate the tenth anniversary of Sandor Salgo as music director and conductor.

As a highlight of this anniversary, Mr. Salgo will present the premiere performances in the West, and possibly in the United States, of Monteverdi's first opera "Orfeo." This will be the first opera presented with full staging at a Carmel Bach Festival.

The opera was commissioned by Vincenze Gonzaga's sons and produced at the Accademia degli Invaghitti on February 22, 1607.

This work fuses the characteristics of the experimental recitative opera, the traditional orchestral splendor of the Renaissance intermedio and the progressive features of da capo aria, orchestral ritornello and highly dramatic choral commentaries into an operatic type of unique significance.

Other features of the 28th festival will be Johann Sebastian Bach's "Passion according to St. Matthew," Handel's pastorale "Acis and Galatea," and the "Christmas Oratorio" by Henrich Schuetz.

The oratorio will be presented in a midnight concert at Carmel Mission Basilica.

Further information on the festival may be obtained by writing to Carmel Bach Festival, Box 503, Carmel.

Neighbors Oppose Using Park For Corporation Yard

a corporation yard, told the Pine Cone he was against this proposal.

"With all the talk about parks and greenbelt I cannot see destroying planting which is just beginning to develop in the canyon which was deeded to the city for park purposes," Mr. Nix declared.

He added that noise resulting from a corporation yard on the proposed site would be offensive to nearby residents and pointed out that, for years, while the park site was being filled by the city, residents on the sides of the canyon had to look at offensive rubbish. Now that the "dump" is a park, Mr. Nix wants it to stay this way. A corporation yard in this location shows "a lack of imagination," Mr. Nix concluded.

Frank Murphy, who has lived for 34 years above the park at the northwest corner of First and Mission, told the Pine Cone the corporation yard proposal for Forest Hill Park is "plain ridiculous." He recalled that he and other residents of the area had opposed nearby Forest Hill School being used by the American Federation of Arts. A corporation yard in the area would be much more offensive to him and his neighbors, he emphasized.

Mrs. Frances Ocneanu, First and Mission, protested to the Pine Cone any location of a corporation yard in the canyon below her home. Such use of Forest Hill Park would depreciate residential land values in the area and create noise she would "dislike." Mrs. Ocneanu also protested land deeded to the city for park use being turned into a corporation yard.

Mrs. Edith Joy, a resident for eight years at First and Junipero, registered a complaint to this paper about the corporation yard.

"The main reason we have our property is because in this area we have a certain amount of quiet and solitude," was her statement. The land was donated as a park and she is very much opposed to its being used any other way, she continued.

Mrs. Joy said being made to look at and hear the noise of a corporation yard was like being forced "to live on the other side of the tracks."

The sounds of the Seniors Club using the recreational facilities below her is "Delightful, I like to hear their conversation . . . their joy, their pleasure," she ended.

Mrs. Howard Roberts, who has lived for 13 years at First and Junipero, does not want a corporation yard in the park below her home.

"I agree with my neighbors that the corporation yard should not be there. The property should be kept as a park," she maintains.

Lastly, Dr. Robert Hoffman, president of the Seniors Club, telephoned the Pine Cone to voice his objections to the proposed corporation yard. Dr. Hoffman is against the recreation facilities the members of the club enjoy being converted into a corporation yard. He wants the club to be able to use their present facilities and not be made to move to the Forest Theater site, as the report recommended.

During yesterday afternoon's study session, Planning Commissioner Fred Keeble said he was "terribly concerned" about the suggested corporation yard at Forest Hill Park. Commissioner George Willox also was worried. He contended that if the yard were placed in the park it would be put "in the wrong place again."

Mr. Keeble was in favor of some equipment storage, at least, being provided at the civic center. Commission Secretary Hugh Bayless, stated that the architects had been instructed to provide such storage on the Junipero site.

Chairman Dorothy von Meier postponed consideration of the proposal until the completed Burde, Shaw & Associates site plan for the civic center on city land between Junipero and Torres Streets is sent to the commission for recommendation to the council.

with greasy hands who save you" as Councilman Stephen Grant describes them, continue to give efficient service under inefficient and inadequate conditions?

Maybe the answer is to put the corporation yard underground . . . in a hole dug by the streets and public works department, of course.

Such a solution would be "different" and in keeping with the unique character of Carmel, only most likely no one in the business or residence zones would want this hidden municipal broom cellar underneath them.

With this in mind, Burde, Shaw, Associates might be asked to include, in their site development plan for the civic center on city-owned land between Junipero and Torres below Fourth, a hidden facility for the streets and public works department. But this will cost a lot of money and for this reason has not been seriously considered, although proposed in the past.

Perhaps it will prove to be the only acceptable solution, now.

Principal Resigns

The resignation of Richard E. O'Connell, principal of River School, was received on Monday by Medill Bair, superintendent of the Carmel Unified School District, and will be submitted to the board of education on Wednesday. Mr. Bair stated that he "regretted" Mr. O'Connell's decision and had endeavored to have him take a leave of absence instead of resigning.

Below is the letter which Mr. O'Connell submitted.

March 8, 1965

Mr. Medill Bair, Superintendent
Members, Board of Education
Carmel Unified School District

Gentlemen & Mrs. Blanks,

After much careful deliberation I feel I must resign my position in the Carmel Unified School District due to a myriad of personal reasons. This decision has been reached with great sadness, for I shall miss all of the children at River School and many of their parents whom I have gotten to know so well during the past eight years. Most of all I will miss the teachers and staff at River School who have worked so hard and been so effective in bringing the best education possible to the students. They have been open-minded, creative, professional people, with a sense of humor, an empathy for children, and a spirit of willingness and cooperation that I deeply appreciate and shall never forget.

I especially want to thank the board for permitting us the freedom to experiment with new methods and materials and to exercise our professional judgment in what to teach and how best to teach it. We have greatly appreciated this freedom—the right to our individuality — for we have worked hard to extend this same right to the children.

Thank you all for allowing me the honor and privilege of being River School's Principal for eight wonderful years.

Sincerely,
Richard E. O'Connell
Principal
